

ABSTRACT

Input print media is received at a printing device. In response to a request from a user to stamp routing information on the print media, the print media is stamped with the routing information. This stamping may be stamping of the received print media, or alternatively the received print media may be unaltered and another print media output having printed thereon the content of the received print media and the routing information.